Dear friends of classical music,

the Church of the Redeemer in the Old City of Jerusalem has always been a place of intercultural and interfaith encounter. As the story goes, this plot of land was originally given by the Muslim Khalif Haroun ar-Rashid from Baghdad to the Christian emperor Charlemagne at the beginning of the 9th century. In the 19th century, it was regained by Prussia from the Ottoman Sultan, and the present church was built on top of the original medieval foundations.

Today, four Protestant or Lutheran congregations worship here in German, Arabic, English, and Danish.

The ongoing dialogue between Christians and Jews, as well as good relations with our Muslim neighbors are of utmost importance for us.

Our concert program aims to foster dialogue and encounter through music. Classical music can bring together people from completely different cultural and religious backgrounds. When you attend one of our concerts, just have a look at your neighbor who is enjoying the same masterpiece as you. Maybe listening together to the same wonderful music will facilitate listening to each other...

On behalf of our Music Committee, I would like to welcome you to our church. At the same time, I would like to give very special thanks to the German Foreign Office for its support through the German Embassy in Tel Aviv and through the German Representative Office in Ramallah.
